The Viniterra winery was founded in 1997 by leading oenologist Adriano Senetiner.

Climate, viticulture, winemaking

Situated in the upper Mendoza valley, the vineyards of Luján de Cuyo sit at altitudes of around 1000m, (3280 feet) above sea level. With intense sunlight experienced during the day and cold night temperatures, the wines produced show deep concentration of flavour and structure. The soils are clay/loam.

Carefully picked at harvest, the grapes undergo a gentle cold press to break the skins and release juice. Alcoholic fermentation in stainless steel tanks occur for 20 days.

Tasting Notes

Pale yellow in colour with hints of green. On the nose, there are tropical aromas such as pineapple with hints of jasmine flowers. A fresh and well balanced wine with nice acidity and a long finish.
